When Christensen and I spoke, he was particularly incensed about prices charged for Advair, a popular asthma medication required by his year-old wife. Socorro Serrano, a Kaiser spokeswoman, said the couple and others in their position should be very careful when shopping for prescription drugs online. But they love their country too much for that. Glaxo is long past the point of recouping its research and development costs for Advair, which has been one of the world's bestselling drugs since its introduction in . Captive markets of sick people may have no choice but to pay whatever is charged by drug companies. He also said Americans with serious medical problems, and especially seniors with limited funds, might have no choice but to take their chances. You are now following this newsletter. Bent Christensen, 78, said he appreciates the savings and also the opportunity to save Medicare some money. But Christensen told me this doesn't make such high prices easier to swallow. Nevertheless, the Huntington Beach couple buy most of their prescription drugs from an online Canadian pharmacy at prices much lower than in the United States. Be the first to comment Hide Comments. Pavur said it's unfair to compare Advair prices in the United States with those in Canada. Advair's patent protection expired in , but Glaxo's patent on the inhaler used to administer the drug lasts until . Prescription drugs are an especially fertile source of profits. He took his business north of the border. The United States has no such requirement.
