As long as neither doctors nor patients are willing to look up the actual price of these products, no one will see through their deception. About a year ago I prescribed cyclobenzaprine, a commonly-prescribed muscle relaxant, for a patient who had recently strained her back. Baclofen Rating User Reviews 7. Check Enable TLS 1. Save Money on Your Medication Costs. This denial seemed especially odd to me since cyclobenzaprine has been generic for many years and there's clinically very little difference between it and baclofen. This fax meant, first, that my patient went home without any medication, and second, that she wouldn't get any medication until I either changed her prescription to what Healthnet "approved" or filled out a form requesting an exception for this particular patient for this particular drug. Looking to reduce costs at the pharmacy counter? The patient's insurance plan doesn't "cover" this medication. They use this illusion of "high cost" to justify the price of their premiums. But we've seen that when we stop watching, they start to extract money directly from the source -- patients -- by getting people to overpay for medical services. There are currently no Patient Assistance Programs that we know about for this drug. As you can see, both medications cost less than the copay, meaning the insurance company wasn't actually being asked to "cover" anything.
