This policy is how came together and decided to do our part in cutting off the supply of these medications to the street. Care Practice operates under a strict policy that prohibits all of our physicians from prescribing Roxicodone, Opana IR, and Oxycontin OC discontinued. It empowered the staff by giving them something they could forward to anyone seeking more information about new appointments, particularly pain patients. The power of addiction is so strong it can breach any wall no matter how thick or how high. In the end we learned that the best defense was letting everyone know there was nothing they were going to get at Care Practice. Our simple Oxycontin policy ban implemented a few years ago had a remarkable and lasting impact on the health and efficiency of the clinic. It dramatically reduced inefficiencies and made the doctors and the staff much happier. Early on we learned that an Oxy addict never calls up to make an appointment mentioning the word Oxycontin. It is time that we face this problem directly and no longer assume it is a problem that originates in another clinic or from the hands of another doctor. Other medications will be added to the ban as needed. Unfortunately the excuse of doing some good can no longer be an excuse for doing so much harm. This was especially important since all five doctors at the time we implemented it were heavily working in treating addiction making us one of the top clinics in the city for dealing with the opiate epidemic. This will be unpopular with some who insist on these medications unique usefulness in treating pain. We have a heavy emphasis on using alternative long acting opiates to treat chronic pain rather than opiates with abuse potential. We recognize that many patients take these medications as prescribed for chronic pain and use them as prescribed with excellent results. We have two decades of writing Oxycontin prescriptions behind us, and we have an epidemic of drug overdoses and addiction in our nation as a result with the vast majority of heroin addicts beginning their addicts with prescribed medications. The doctor shopping and drug seekers virtually disappeared overnight. This drug epidemic has its origins in each of our exam rooms with our hands writing the prescriptions. This policy virtually eliminated these frustrating and difficult interactions with new patients. Before Uber, there was the meteoric rise of Oxycontin.
