Consumer Reports Insights Overactive bladder doesn't always require drugs. The condition can develop in men or women of any age but is more likely to occur in older adults. And 58 percent were concerned about big drug companies' buying meals for doctors and their staffs. But the truth, as detailed in Consumer Reports' latest Best Buy Drugs report, is that lifestyle changes and bladder-training exercises can often provide relief without the need for a drug. It can be annoying if your bladder seems to work overtime and you're headed to the bathroom more often than you'd like, but that doesn't necessarily mean you need medication or that you even have a medical problem. If you purchase medications online, be sure you are buying from a reputable and valid online pharmacy. Two or more reference listed drugs are generally selected only when there are at least two potential reference drug products which are not bioequivalent to each other. It's not a total surprise that advertising seems to work, when you consider that 20 percent of people currently taking a prescription drug report having asked their doctor for medication they learned about from an ad. Subscribe to receive email notifications whenever new articles are published. If you have these symptoms, it's important to see a doctor to get an accurate diagnosis, because there are several other conditions that are treated differently but are sometimes confused with overactive bladder.
